

How NOT To Video Conference

[MUSIC PLAYING]

[DOORBELL RINGS]

TONY: Hey, sorry I'm late, Tom, I got held up trying to get this presentation to load.

TOM: That's OK, Tony, did you get it working?

TONY: Not exactly. I'm just going to email it to you.

TOM: OK, I guess that works. Hey, Tony, I can barely see you. Do you mind zooming in a bit?

TONY: Oh, really? Let me figure that out real quick. Oh, hey, no. You know what, let me just move.

TOM: OK. Yeah, that's sort of better now, but it's really dark.

TONY: That's all right, let's just keep this going.

TOM: All right. So, well, I wanted to go over the six month out-- post graduation surveys. Hey, sorry, Tony, would you mind muting your mic?

TONY: My bad.

TOM: OK, as I was saying, I wanted to go over the six month out post-graduation surveys. Do you have any updates?

[MUSIC PLAYING]

Tony, Tony, Tony. You're still muted.

[MUSIC PLAYING]

Still muted, Tony.

TONY: There. So, what part of that did you miss?

TOM: All of it.

TONY: Oh, no sweat. I'll just start from the top. So, anyway--

SPEAKER 1: Hey, Tony.

TONY: Oh, hey.

SPEAKER 1: Hey, I have this room reserved.

TONY: You reserved the room? Like, you have to reserve these? Hey, Tom, apparently you have to reserve the room for these meetings. But great meeting, I'll touch base with you next week, and I'll email you the notes. All right? Talk to you soon. Later. Nailed it.